'WINKIN' LINCOLN'—A couple of young visitors to the Los Angeles County Art Museum take a look at part of a "pop art" exhibit—a painting called "Winkin' Lincoln." It's included in the exhibit assembled by Lawrence Alloway, curator of New York's Guggenheim Museum, and is producing reactions from viewers ranging from bewilderment to ridicule to amusement. This one was painted by Phillip Hefferton and shows Lincoln winking from a five dollar bill.—AP Wirephoto.
